Short description

Why is it important for sport and non-sport actors to collaborate on the Integration of Refugees Through Sport? Thousands of organisations and volunteers around the world are working with refugees, all wanting to help facilitate their transition into their new communities. Sports clubs, social clubs, schools, municipalities, humanitarian organisations – all working with the same aim, but not always working together.

MOVE Beyond shows how joining forces can help sport and non-sport organisations achieve more with the same amount of effort – simply by working together. Four sport and four non-sport organisations from UK, Italy, Sweden and Denmark share their advice for successful collaboration plus four winning approaches (Welcoming, Empowerment, Community and Bridging) that all sport and non-sport actors should consider when working on Integration of Refugees Through Sport initiatives. You can also listen to the podcasts that inspired the recommendations at <https://isca.podbean.com>
